

HOSE CART AND LADDER - 5 COMPETITORS

Fire Brigade Demonstrations, as they were known from the mid 1800s to the latter part of the Twentieth Century, now Championships, were initiated by private (e.g. Insurance Companies) and volunteer brigades to demonstrate their proficiency to the public in scenarios typically seen in a fire situation.

As today, Demonstrations/Championships were conducted using current fire fighting equipment and appliances.

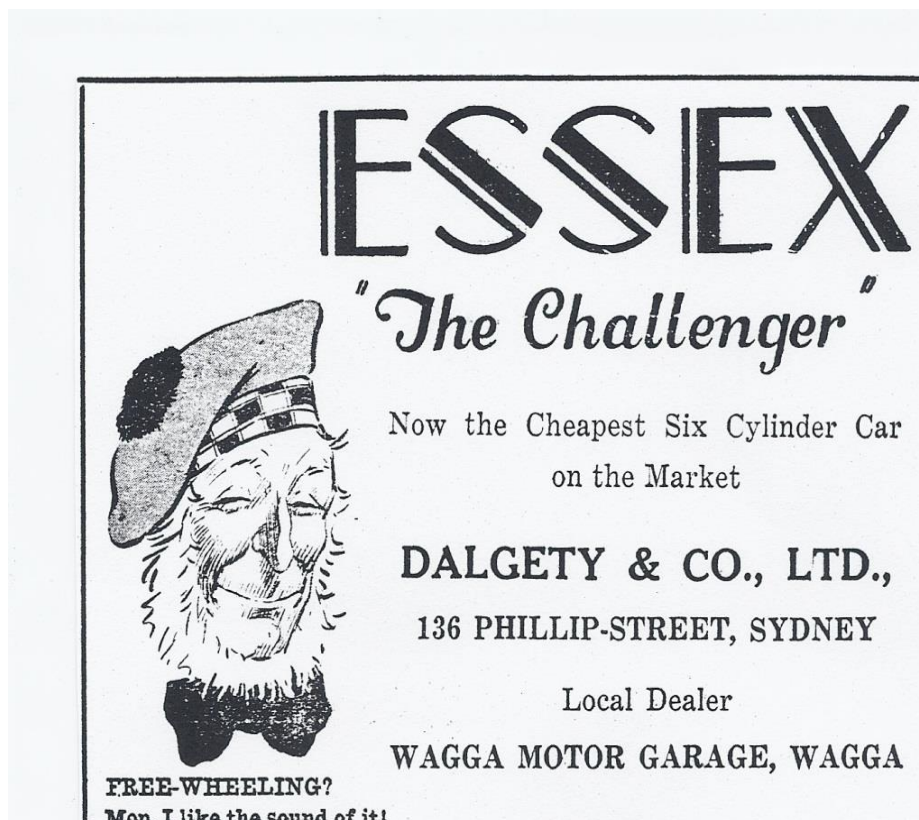

Typically, brigades in rural areas had a hose reel or hose cart, several lengths of hose, standpipe and branch, hydrant bar etc., the hose cart or hose reel were used to transport the equipment to the fire. The firemen relied on the town water supply to provide sufficient pressure to extinguish the fire.

Hose Cart and Hose Reel Events were retained until recent times to incorporate an historical element in Championships.
